SAN JOSE (July 1, 2004) – Nearly 150 golfers will compete Monday July 19 in the SBC San José Golf Classic 2004 presented by CordeValle, hosted by Mayor Ron Gonzales, to support the San Jose Sports Authority's popular Eagles at Rancho del Pueblo golf program for underprivileged youth.

Now in its fourth year, Eagles at Rancho del Pueblo has introduced more than 400 boys and girls to golf and the life skills of patience, character and self-discipline, which the game teaches. Each participant in the program receives 32 hours of PGA / LPGA instruction at city-owned Rancho del Pueblo Golf Course, free access to the driving range and playing privileges for $1 per round. Without this program, a majority of the young people it serves would never be exposed to golf.

Eagles at Rancho del Pueblo was established in March 2001 with a grant from the United States Golf Association, but is now supported entirely by funds raised through the SBC San José Golf Classic.

The tournament is an all-day affair at CordeValle Golf Club in San Martin beginning at 10 a.m. and includes a $10,000 putting contest, lunch, 18 holes of golf and a reception and recognition dinner. Single-player entries are $500, and foursome sponsorships begin at $2,000. (Full tournament schedule and sponsorship details below)

Secure online registration for the tournament is available at https://www.winssecure.com/users/sjsaorg/golf\_classic04.asp.

Eagles at Rancho del Pueblo is a program of the San Jose Sports Authority, which actively supports youth and amateur athletics throughout the community as well as bringing premier sports events to the city. The San Jose Sports Authority is the sports marketing agency for the City of San José and is a private nonprofit 501(c)(3) tax exempt corporation. Contributions are tax deductible for the amount of the contribution less the value of the benefits received. Visit our website at www.sjsa.org.
